Thirteen Lully pieces, entered by five hands (Gustafson's Hands A, B, C, D and E), all very competent, although Hand C is somewhat hasty.

The pieces by Hand C (nos. 18–20) form a small Lully section drawn from different works. The Lully Courante (no. 20, incomplete) is a copy of D'Anglebert's 1689 print. The arrangements in other hands appear either as isolated movements (Hand A, no. 6; Hand B, no. 17; Hand D, no. 23) or in composite suites, i.e. pieces in the same key, but from different sources and by different composers (Hand A, nos. 2 and 11; Hand D, nos. 27–28, 30; Hand E, nos. 33 and 44).

Performance Notes

In the seventeenth century, the notation is under-prescriptive by modern standard and some elements of the performance may only be partially indicated or not indicated at all. Generally speaking, the performer has the discretion to supply in performance much that is not indicated in the source, such as by adding ornaments as well as melodic and rhythmic fillers, by spreading chords in a variety of ways, by embellishing the cadences, and sometimes even by enriching the texture with points of imitation. The modern performer can take lessons from D'Anglebert, who re-edited a selection of his autograph pieces for publication in 1689.¹ The performance attitude and elusive nature of the seventeenth-century French repertory has been exhaustively discussed by David Fuller, Ronald Broude, Bruce Gustafson, and others.²

The player can refer to the table below for guidance on the interpretation of ornament symbols commonly found in manuscript sources.

In “2” time, eighth notes in conjunct motion (mm. 3–5, 18, etc.) should be rendered long and short successively as if notated in dotted values. Further advice on the rhythmic convention of notes inégales and other performance practice issues can be found in the “Introduction”.
